Actually...I'd rather you did it yourself

Article by Alan D. Quilley

One of the best bosses I ever had taught me a great deal about commitment to solutions. He had an engraved sign on his desk that simply said "Actually...I'd rather you did it yourself". The message was clear...upward delegation of my problems to him wasn't going to happen. Now that being said, he was always there to help me talk through solutions and was great at helping me strategize the implementation of my ideas. He was however in no way going to accept the "dump and run" problem drop that is all too prevalent in the world of managing safety.

By design of our safety management systems we have sometimes mistakenly allowed people with safety problems to pass them off to others for solution. Safety Committees, supervisors, anonymous reports and hotlines can all play these roles if we're not careful. They can allow the abdication of the problem and the creation of solutions conveniently to someone else with little or no effort on the part of the person with the problem. This isn't very functional, efficient nor is it very effective.

This is particularly important in the “worker right to refuse unsafe work.” As one of the “Three Rights” we’ve enshrined in OHS law it’s important to ensure that everyone has the right to stop what they are doing if it feels like there is imminent danger to themselves or others. That right once exercised then becomes a duty, in my opinion, to help with finding a safe solution to getting the work done. It is that inclusion that helps to make the outcomes not only safe but enhances the culture of a place to be one of inclusion. Safety is always richer when done WITH people and not TO people.

People are logically and emotionally predisposed to support and implement solutions that they have created. It’s not a mystery that we tend to love our own ideas...we thought of them, how could we not like them. So giving the solution creating activities to the very people who have to implement the solutions is the only truly clever way to manage safety. Now I’m not talking about anarchy here...the assignment to come up with solutions to safety problems includes the requirement to not only make it safe, but make it legal. The solutions have to be doable and affordable. These are the same parameters that the folks have now who are coming up with solutions for your company. In those companies who have not already done this “worker engagement” piece it’s usually your supervisors and professional safety staff who are tagged with solution searching.

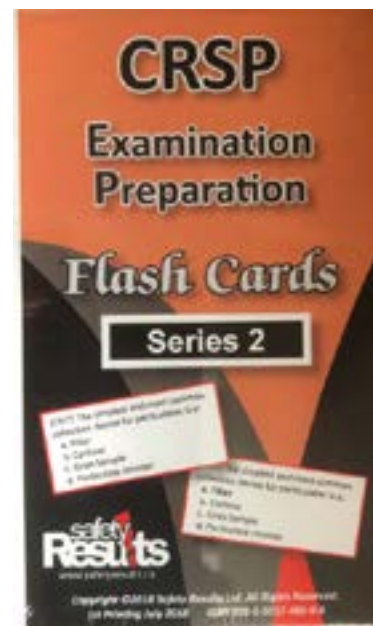

We can do better...much better. Do safety WITH people and not TO people.

What makes us different?

- If you learn better by sitting and listening to a lecturer drone on and on, then this is not the Workshop for you.
- If you learn better by sifting through mountains of paper presented in a random and an illogical manner, then this is not the Workshop for you.
- If you learn better by sitting and answering hundreds of practice exam questions without direction, then this is not the Workshop for you.
- If you learn better by reviewing regurgitated copies of the BCRSP's Study Guides (that you've already paid for!), then this is not the Workshop for you.

How do we know all this? Students who have taken other providers' Workshops have told us. Ours always wins, hands down, every time.

Why not learn from Alan Quilley CRSP, our dynamic instructor who engages participants, and teaches you how to study, truly demonstrating that you can enjoy learning? He's a proven industry leader who actually works with companies, helping them create their Health and Safety programs worldwide. He's a working CRSP who consults and also trains internationally.

We don't just teach it, we live it.

Our course format is often imitated but never surpassed. Don't be fooled by cheap imitations of our process, format and content. Safety Results Workshops are the gold standard of preparation workshops.

For more details and to register, please visit our CRSP Workshops page.

And remember that if you are unable to attend one of our Workshops, you can purchase the very same Manual, Workbook, Multiple Choice/Quick Answer and Long Answer FlashCards that our students receive in our Workshops. Visit our CRSP Exam Prep Materials page for more details!
